

Long-standing partners

Gardinia (West Wales) and Veka are celebrating a successful 30 year partnership. The Narbeth-based fabricator and installer was established in 1983 and moved over to Veka profile a few years later.

A member of Independent Network, Gardinia has won a record number of national customer service awards over the years and has a reputation for quality and service throughout Pembrokeshire and beyond.

Gardinia director David Morris says: “We are delighted to celebrate 30 years with Veka in the same year we mark 35 years in business. We’ve never felt the need to change systems suppliers because Veka Group provides such a range of high quality systems backed up with all the technical support we could ever need. It means we have a huge portfolio of products for our customers to choose from, in almost countless styles and colour combinations.

“Our reputation is built on providing the highest standard of product, workmanship and service, so we demand a lot of our suppliers. Veka has never let us down.

“Being a member of Independent Network means that our customers can see immediately that we can offer complete peace of mind when it comes to investing in new home improvements, and our membership has been extremely valuable in securing sales for us over the years.”

Veka Group commissioned a special plaque to thank Gardinia for years of loyalty, which was presented by business development manager Ian Smith to David Morris.

Smith says: “It is a pleasure to work with a firm like Gardinia which has so much in common with Veka. They are both very long-standing, family-owned companies that are committed to product quality and customer care.

Which is probably why they’ve worked so well together for so long. Here’s to the next 30 years!” □

Due to be launched in September, Polyframe Conservatories is a conservatory solution, which brings five profiles from Rehau, Veka, Halo, Duraflex and Eurocell together with the Global conservatory roof system.

Richard Lee, managing director at Polyframe, Halifax, says: “We have been working very hard at Polyframe to develop an extensive package that helps installers to explore new opportunities and win more business. Polyframe Conservatories is the latest addition and it brings even more choice and greater added value to our customers.

“There is still a high demand for conservatories in the UK and, by delivering the widest selection of profiles and the most popular roof, we enable installers to choose the most suitable profile for each individual conservatory installation.” □
